Economic and Market Commentary: Let Powell drive the bus

May 1, 2025

No one likes backseat drivers, but if they lunge for the steering wheel, you can't ignore them. That's the position that President Trump has repeatedly put Federal Reserve Chair Jerome Powell in when he attacks him for refusing to cut interest rates. Presidents occasionally chirp about Fed policy, but Trump's tweets go well beyond that.

Perhaps because cash managers deal in securities that don't know the meaning of VIX, we do our best to ignore Trump. But the problem is not that administration lawyers might find a legal loophole to remove Powell, usurp Fed independence with a "shadow chair" or do something more drastic. It's that Powell's term as chair is set to expire in May 2026, which means he will essentially be a lame duck in a few quarters, and Trump's assault could accelerate that timeline when we need strong leadership. And, though Trump might want to hand-pick his successor, the nominee must come from the group of standing Fed governors. That could mean the new chair might not hold wildly different opinions, as Powell has shown a commanding influence on the Fed board and FOMC over the years. He's been challenged more in the last few quarters, with some dissension, but it seems they largely support his view of economics.

So, cue the debate that likely will ensue at the FOMC meeting on May 7. It would not be surprising if Powell and most of the voting members push back against the fed funds futures call for as many as four quarter-point cuts over the rest of 2025. A cut is extremely unlikely, but expect guidance about how the tariffs could exacerbate the stickiness of inflation and more

Definition of Weighted Average Maturity and Weighted Average Life

WAM is the mean average of the periods of time remaining until the securities held in the fund's portfolio (a) are scheduled to be repaid, (b) would be repaid upon a demand by the fund or (c) are scheduled to have their interest rate readjusted to reflect current market rates. For government variable rate securities, if the interest rate is readjusted no less frequently than every 397 calendar days, the security shall be deemed to have a maturity equal to the period remaining until the next readjustment of the interest rate. For non-government variable rate securities, if the security has a scheduled maturity of 397 days or less the security is treated as maturing on the earlier of the date the security is scheduled to be repaid through demand or the period remaining until the next readjustment of the interest rate. If the variable rate security has a scheduled maturity that is more than 397 days it is the later of those two dates. The mean is weighted based on the percentage of the market value of the portfolio invested in each period.

WAL is calculated in the same manner as WAM, but is based solely on the periods of time remaining until the securities held in TexPool (a) are scheduled to be repaid or (b) would be repaid upon a demand by TexPool, without reference to when interest rates of securities within TexPool.

clarity on the hard/soft data dichotomy. Can policymakers continue to dismiss the nosedive in consumer sentiment? Will they downplay GDP's first-quarter contraction? All the uncertainty is the main reason we are of the opinion that three rate cuts in the second half of this year are in order.

Where does this put the money markets? Yields might decline faster than they might have absent the current proposed tariffs. But we expect they will remain relatively attractive. We also anticipate continued growth of assets under management. Stocks are acting like the worst is behind us, but the White House is sure to smack them again, potentially pushing investor assets to the relative safety of liquidity vehicles. Money market fund assets across the industry continue to hit record highs and value can be found, especially in the longer end of the liquidity yield curve. In a complex time like this, we'd like to think that investors also appreciate active management driving their portfolios.

At the end of the month, yields on 1-, 3-, 6- and 12-month US Treasuries were 4.30%, 4.29%, 4.19% and 3.86%, respectively.

90-Day Treasury Bill is a short-term debt instrument backed by the national government. These are used to collect immediate cash to meet outstanding obligations.

Any private investor can invest in a Treasury bill. The 90-Day Treasury Bill is a weighted average rate of the weekly auctions of 90-Day Treasury Bills.
